The Institute for Engaged Learning was created in 2018 to promote the effective use, delivery, scaling, and tracking of and equitable access to High-Impact Practices (HIPs) to support student learning, engagement, and success. Research has shown that HIPs such as first-year experiences, internships, undergraduate research, service learning, and capstone experiences benefit student learning and engagement while increasing student retention and graduation rates. At the core of the IEL's mission is to promote undergraduate learning through equitable access to pathways of connected curricular and co-curricular, experiential, applied, and integrative learning opportunities that prepare students for lives of meaning and success with skills to communicate, innovate, engage with communities, and solve problems of the 21st century.

Our goal is to ensure that all 20,000 undergraduate students at IUPUI participate in 4 engaged learning experiences (averaging one per academic year).

Residing within the Division of Undergraduate Education (DUE), the Institute comprises several units and centers that work together to support faculty, staff, and students in these efforts, including: First-Year Experience, Center for Service and Learning, Center for Research and Learning, Gateway to Graduation, ePortfolio, and the RISE to the Challenge initiative. The Institute also partners with other units that support engaged learning efforts on campus, such as Study Abroad and several internship programs.
